

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact:

Eniko Ujj
EnikoUjj@gmail.com

Unlock the Ancient Art of Pit Firing at a Hands-On Workshop in Milton, FL

[Pensacola, FL – January 27, 2025] – Step into the rich tradition of pit-fired ceramics with artists Eniko Ujj and Nick Phoenix on March 16, 2025, at Native Plant Company in Milton, FL. This immersive workshop offers a rare opportunity to explore one of the oldest and most communal methods of ceramic firing, transforming clay into art with earth, fire, and natural elements.

Designed for participants of all experience levels, the workshop combines creative experimentation with hands-on learning in a welcoming environment. Attendees will decorate ceramic pieces with materials like dried flowers, salt, and eggshells, help load and ignite the pit, and witness the unveiling of uniquely fired works. The experience is as much about the shared process as the finished art.

Workshop Details:

- Date: March 16, 2025 (Rain Date: March 30, 2025)
- Location: Native Plant Company, 1190 Christmas Tree Rd., Milton, FL
- Time: 10 AM - 4 PM
- Fee: Sliding scale suggested payment: $80
- Capacity: Limited to 30 participants

“Pit firing is not just an art form but a communal experience,” says Eniko Ujj. “It’s about connecting with others, nature, and the raw elements of the process. I’m excited to share what has been a transformative practice for me.”

Pit firing’s accessible, low-tech approach eliminates the need for traditional kilns, making it a truly inclusive art form. This workshop reflects that ethos by offering sliding-scale fees and fostering a welcoming space for all, particularly women and others interested in this traditionally male-dominated craft.

About the Artists:

- Eniko Ujj is an interdisciplinary artist from Pensacola whose ceramics practice explores themes of environmental sustainability and community connection. Since 2020, she has led over 30 pit fires and workshops, sharing her passion for this egalitarian and experimental technique.
- Nick Phoenix is a multidisciplinary artist based in Pensacola, specializing in ceramics, woodworking, and natural materials. Their work reflects a deep appreciation for local resources, including wild clay, and they bring extensive experience in teaching hands-on workshops.

Reserve Your Spot:

Spaces are limited to 30 participants. Visit enikoujj.com/workshop/ or email pitfiredceramics@gmail.com for more information and to register.